Welcome Parents and Caregivers

Reading is an essential skill for everyone. It is the vital foundation of a child's learning and engagement in their school years and for life. Libraries are not only invested in supporting the development of early literacy skills of children from birth, they are also keen advocates of sustaining literacy and promoting the importance of recreational reading across all ages, particularly during the summer months.

WHY?

There is a tendency for children to lose some of the academic achievement gains made in the school year as they disengage from participation in educational activities and academic routines during the summer.

This loss of learning over the summer months is often referred to as the 'Summer Slide.' Research continues to demonstrate that access to books, involvement in fun recreational reading programs and extending connections to literature through arts and STEM activities has proven to combat the Summer Slide.

As a free, public, community space, with access to a variety of reading materials and resources for all interests, libraries are best placed to help you and your family to combat the Summer Slide throughout the summer.

It is their goal to help support you and your family's continued literacy development, by connecting you and your family to your library's holiday programs and activities which are specifically developed to encourage and nurture a love of literature and recreational reading.

Participating in the Summer Reading Club

Participation in the Summer Reading Club 40 days in 40 ways Reading Challenge encourages reading for fun and enjoyment all summer long!
